Black business honoured by City

It was all glitz and glam at the Pietermaritzburg Black Business Legacy Awards, held on Friday evening at the City Hall, where the Msunduzi Municipality honoured black business owners who made it through the apartheid era. At the event, the municipality recognised the initiative that black business owners took during apartheid and intends to create a platform to celebrate and showcase those men and women who are at the forefront of advancing the transformation and empowerment of black businesses within the Msunduzi Municipality. Mayor, Themba Njilo said he identified with what it was like to have a business in South Africa during oppressed. He said the municipality did not want young business people to go through the same hardship because they now had many opportunities to help them grow. "Black businesses were not empowered. We had to work hard. Your business had to collapse three times before you got to a stable level. Those who claim they are business people while they deal with tenders are wrong. If you are a business owner, you have to work hard and suffer in order to appreciate the success," said Njilo. Njilo further said that those who inherited businesses from their parents needed to continue to work hard. He advised them not to rush into a flashy lifestyle. The aim of the Pietermaritzburg Black Business Legacy Awards is to encourage the growth and sustainability of black business with the view to provide the platform to fast track the graduation of previously disadvantaged individuals into the mainstream of the Pietermaritzburg economy, and ultimately provincial and national economy. The recipients were: Dindi Store (Harold Bhengu) Zondi Store (Nkosi Zondi) Difa Ngcobo (Fortune Ngcobo) Zakes Dladla (Zakes Dladla) Hlengwa Store (Mrs Hlengwa) Jerry Ngcobo (Makhosi Ngcobo) Ghela Outfitters (Madan Ghela)

PJ Zondi (Sifiso Zondi) Mntungwa's Funeral Palour (Sbu Mntungwa) Seoka Family (Roy Seoka) Nene Family (Boy Nene) Chule Family (Hloniphan Chule) Sokhela Group (Zihle Sokhela and Mafika Sokhela) Msimang Family (Dlozi Msimang) Norman Mkhize (Norman Mkhize) Siba Group (Thokozani Dlamini) Khulumani Hlophe Group (Bongi Hlophe) Willowton Group

Imbali revamp takes shape

The Msunduzi Municipality's revamp of Imbali Township has started with the rollout of a multi-million rand industrial hub project along FJ Sithole Road. The project involves the demolition of an old building next to Sukuma Secondary School and reconstructing it into a facility that will bolster local economic development by tapping into the economic activities conducted by local entrepreneurs. The project is one of many under the City Entities and Sustainable Development business unit at the municipality aimed at breathing life into the township economy concept. Speaking to Msunduzi News Chief Town Planner George Lebelo said they were satisfied with the pace of the construction of the project. "When one moves along FJ Sithole Road one can see that there is some activity taking place there. A security wall has been erected and is nearing completion - that forms part of the first phase of the project. After this, much construction will continue taking place because our aim is to ensure that the project gets finished within the required period so that it can be of use to the community," said Lebelo. The site that was once used as a training facility for carpentry, motor mechanics, welding and other technical skills, had deteriorated over the years. As the facility was not properly secured, some people started occupying it as residential premises while others used it for business activities. The municipality held discussions with the occupants to indicate the municipality's intention. "It was important for the municipality to determine how those occupying it were using it, so we realised that there were aspiring business operators. There is an understanding that when the project is finished, they will be considered as occupants - provided their businesses are legal and in line with the activities planned for the hub," said Lebelo. Once completed the hub will offer a wide range of services including a social hall facility, tuck shop, welding facility, laundry, factory shop, shop, special building, conference area, place of instruction, and green economy activities. In addition, the hub will also provide a venue for ICT, adult education and training offices, community service industry, builder's yard, car wash, spray painting and recycling centre. It is believed that townships have the potential of becoming key drivers of local economic development and the Industrial Hub project at Pietermaritzburg's biggest township will serve as a model of how townships can drive economic activities and create jobs.

Mayor's Message Themba Njilo Msunduzi Mayor

Fighting urban decay is a collective effort

After weeks of hard work from the Department of Education, their teachers and learners, the matric class of 2017 has begun with their final year examinations.

I join a host of well-wishers in saying good luck to all our learners and once again appeal to parents, families and communities to provide every form of support necessary and possible to ensure that writing examinations is not a heavy burden.

The future of the city, KwaZulu-Natal and South Africa rests upon well educated people - and acquiring a matric certificate is a crucial part of education.

In South Africa, October is Transport Month and much emphasis is placed by government on a safe and economically viable mode of public transport.

The Intergrated Rapid Public Transport Network(IRPTN) is but one part of government's response in ensuring that our commuters eventually enjoy use of an affordable, reliable and safe public transport system.

That is why there has been a hive of activity along Edendale Road as road construction and expansion which forms part of the IRPTN continues.

Frustrating as it can be when road construction takes place during peak hours, commuters and other road users should bear in mind that this is done for the public good.

“As a resident of the city, I often take time in the evening walking in the central business district and am often amazed at the level of cleanliness.”

A lot has been said about the rate of decay in our city with many pointing to the municipality's inability to deal with this challenge.

As a resident of the city, I often take time in the evening walking in the central business district and am often amazed at the level of cleanliness. This is usually after our workers have swept every part of the city, picked refuse and ensured that every corner has been left clean. It is quite a pleasant sight to behold when our city is clean.

However it is disappointing that within hours after businesses have opened for operation our city resembles something different with papers and all forms of rubbish strewn all over the place. Surely the municipality cannot be blamed for that.

The question is what are you doing as an individual, resident and visitor of the city in ensuring that the city remains clean? A simple habit of putting a paper, plastic container or can in a dustbin goes a long way in keeping one's surrounding clean. Such individual efforts would help make our city the one that each one of us is proud to be part of.

I therefore urge everyone who loves Pietermaritzburg to play their part in fighting urban decay and not leave everything to government. In conclusion I would like to urge all Msunduzi residents to #savewater, #stoplandinvasion, #stopillegalelectricityconnection. Together we can do more.

Let us take care of our beautiful city – the City of Choice that is second to none.

City on my mind Sizwe Hadebe Acting Municipal Manager

Understanding the importance of a global village

As the administrative wing of the Msunduzi Municipality, we have a massive task of bringing and retaining investment in the city as part of the city's growth and development strategy.

Through our membership of the South African Cities Network we get exposed to practices that are used by leading cities in the country, and the official visits that are often undertaken to other parts of the world are meant to ensure that we import those practices that can work to the benefit of the city and its residents.

The Twin Cities concept is but one of the initiatives that are meant to help in developing our city by borrowing from what other cities in the world are doing, it is a standard practice the world over.

That is why we roll out the red carpet when we are visited by public representatives and officials from different countries whether from China, India or Singapore because we know the value and benefit of forging partnerships with sister cities around the world.

Events such as the recently held Amashova Cycle Tour and the Paralympic World Championships provide a good platform for the city to market itself. The effort of attracting investment involves using a range of avenues and platforms such as staging events, taking adverts at radio stations whether regional or national because the fact of the matter is one never knows where potential investors are and it becomes important for the municipality to cast the net as wide as possible in pursuit of investment opportunities.

When South Africa became a democracy in 1994 –after years of living in isolation-it meant that we became part of the world family.

Recently the Executive Committee approved the request for Msunduzi Municipality to be part of the International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives (ICLEI) which is a huge development for the city.

Advantages of such membership include being part of the voice local authorities on a variety of topic and debates, engaging international institutions such as the United Nations agencies and the World Economic Forum and many more.

In addition to this membership provides a chance for networking capacity building and information exchanging as well as connection and linking with cities on shared interests. Pietermaritzburg is the capital city of KwaZulu-Natal and we all need to appreciate that we are part of the global village and must make use of every opportunity possible to play our part in the global arena.

Cleaning up the City is a joint effort – mayor

M sunduzi Mayor Themba Njilo says keeping the city clean should be a joint effort involving businesses, citizens and the municipality, because a clean city benefits everyone.

He said this after municipal staff and public representatives embarked on a cleaning campaign on October 27.

The municipal team made up of different businesses was spotted carrying brooms and spades to collect the dirt on the streets and worked on hotspots which include the main tax rank.

According to the mayor the clean-up forms part of a broader strategy aimed at restoring business confidence by having a clean city.

“Our appeal, as the municipality, is for everyone to play their part in creating a clean city. Working in isolation does not benefit everyone but a group effort will yield results,” said the mayor.

Mayor Njilo said if the success of the campaign was a total commitment from as many businesses as possible.

He appealed to all residents to join the movement to clean up the city and called for vigilance against littering.

The Weeping Cross of Delville Wood

The Weeping Cross is located in the Pietermaritzburg Garden of Remembrance. Dedicated to soldiers who died during the two World Wars, the Garden of Remembrance with its Delville Wood Cross is a popular attraction in Pietermaritzburg. The somber Garden of Remembrance is actually quite attractive and contains a number of monuments in honor of servicemen who died on the battlefields of the World Wars.

In 1916 a number of South African troops were sent to France to the village of Longueval to provide support to the British in World War One. The South African brigade was ordered to occupy the French wood and hold it at all costs to protect British troops who had just taken the adjacent village of Langleval. Shells razed the woods, slamming into trees and leaving only a few tree stumps intact. By July 18, the South Africans had been driven from their trenches, the wounded could not be evacuated and reinforcements could not get through.

After the battle, three wooden crosses were cut from the few remaining stumps and presented to Durban, Cape Town and Pietermaritzburg as memorials. The Pietermaritzburg cross, that is made from Scots Pine, is the only one that weeps.

The cross has been named the Weeping Cross of Delville as it is known to "weep" around the time of the July anniversary of the World War One battle in which South African soldiers lost their lives. Locals believe that when the last remaining soldier of Delville breathes his last breath, the weeping will end.

Visitors to Pietermaritzburg are encouraged to stop at the Garden of Remembrance and view the Weeping Cross of Delville Wood.
